Aufgabenstellungen und Ausgangstexte

A) Leseverstehen

Read the following texts carefully.

The long way to a new land

Eric, his brother Sean and his Mum and Dad had no food for the long winter in Scotland. Dad tried to buy food.

"It's hopeless", he told Mum. "There's nothing to buy. People have left their farms. I saw children begging¹."

One day a letter came from Uncle Callum in America. When Dad opened the envelope he found two letters inside, one from Uncle Callum and one from Callum's daughter Linda.

Dear ones,
the worst is now over. It's a new life for us here - we have built our house.
Our land is good. We will have food for the winter.
We think of you there in Scotland. We know how hard it must be. Your farm is small and rocky.
You have two sons. What future do they have? Come! We will help you.
Come to America!

Dear Eric
We have a cow and twelve chickens. We eat wheat² bread with butter every day. And I have seen an Indian. He was very friendly. I hope you can come to America, too.
Your cousin
Linda

"I want wheat bread with butter", said Sean. "Can we go to America?"

That night Eric could not sleep. He was too hungry. – And he was thinking of Linda's letter. He could hear Mum and Dad talking in their bed.

The next morning Dad said, "There is no future for us here. We will go to America."

Dad made a big trunk³ with a lock

He sold their small farm and most of their things. He did not get much money. But it was enough to buy their tickets to America.

They filled the "America trunk" with clothes, tools, Dad's gun and the Bible.

They filled the "America trunk" with clothes. Finally they left their farm on their old cart.

It took three days to reach the city of Glasgow. Dad sold the cart and bought their tickets, because now they had to take the train to Liverpool.

1. begging· bitteln

1 begging: bitteln
2 wheat: Weizen

2 Wheat: Weizen
3 trunk: Truhe Überseekoffer

In Liverpool port they met an emigrant agent¹. He helped them with their baggage and got them safely to the seaport.

Liverpool port was very crowded. Eric held on tightly to Dad's hand. All around he heard strange languages of other emigrants: German, Swedish, Norwegian, French.

The emigrants boarded the ship. Dad found their bunks².

"Clean straw!" said Mum and laid out the bedding.

On the 12th day someone shouted: „Land!“

Men in uniforms examined their baggage.

A doctor looked into their eyes and down their throats.

Sean whined³: "I'm hungry. I want wheat bread with butter."

Eric watched the men check Dad's papers. They asked him many questions and Dad was nervous.

Finally it was over!

"Don't move from here", said Dad. When he came back he was laughing. "Sean", he said, "look! Wheat bread with butter!" But Sean was fast asleep.

"We have got a letter, too!" said Dad. "Callum and Sara welcome us to America. Everything is arranged – and I have work for the winter! "

D) Hörverstehen

You are going to hear a conversation between a boy called Brian and his girlfriend Pauline, then two conversations between Brian and his friend Jason. You will hear them twice. Then you will have to answer some questions.

His last chance ... (Transkript des Hörtextes)

Scene 1

Narrator In an ice-cream-parlour (typical sounds to be heard)

- Brian: Ah, Pauline, finally you're here!
- Pauline: Oh, hi, Brian. Have you been waiting long?
- Brian: No, not really...
- Waiter: Good afternoon – your orders, please!
- Pauline: I'd like the vanilla ice-cream with strawberries.
- Brian: For me, just a Coke.
- Waiter: Thank you. Would you like your Coke with lemon?
- Brian: No, thank you.
- Pauline: There's some good news, Brian!
- Brian: Really? Did you book that campsite up in Scotland for the summer break???
- Pauline: Ehm, Brian, I ...
- Brian: Oh, that doesn't matter. I was expecting that they are already full. Never mind, we'll find another great place to spend our summer holidays. I don't care too much where I am – as long as you are around!
- Narrator Waiter brings the ice-cream and the Coke
- Waiter: Here you are. That's £ 3,80 altogether.
£ 4 is ok. Thank you.
- (typical sounds to be heard, saucers, glasses etc. on the table)*
- Pauline: Brian, what I really wanted to tell you ...
- Brian: Don't think about that campsite too much, dear, I'm really not disappointed.
- Pauline: (quite upset now) Brian, would you just listen for a moment? What I'm going to tell you is – ehm – I'm going to Germany as an au-pair.
- Brian: (laughing): Pauline, you are joking!
- Pauline: No, Brian, this is definitely NO joke. I AM GOING TO GERMANY!!!
- Brian: But, ... wwwwhen, I mean, ... when did you decide to leave Andover?
- Pauline: Well, Brian, I mean it's no secret that Andover is quite small – and really boring! Before I have to start a job and will perhaps never again have the money nor the time to stay abroad I will take my chance. It is always very good to get to know a foreign country, experience every-day-life with a family, and, of course, I will improve my German. You know, Mr Jackson always told me my German was quite poor
- Brian: Pauline, would you just stop for a moment? We're not at the travel agency here, you don't need to list all the advantages! Just tell me what will happen to us??? Have you thought of me at all???
- Pauline: Brian, it's a great chance for me! And why should anything change between us? We can phone, e-mail and perhaps you can visit me in summer ...

Scene 2

Narrator: Four weeks later: Brian and Pauline have e-mailed nearly every day for three weeks. But during the last week, Pauline hasn't answered Brian's mails. He hasn't heard a single word from Pauline. Of course, she had given him her address written on a piece of paper, but he had lost it – well, the truth was that his mother had washed his jeans with the paper, so he couldn't write letters or phone her. He is desperate and doesn't know what to do. He still hopes there will be a happy ending.

At school, during the break (typical sounds to be heard)

- Brian: Hi, Jason, good to meet you!
- Jason: Hi, Brian. How's Pauline doing? Any news from her?
- Brian: That's exactly my problem – I haven't heard a single word for more than a week now! Jason, what can I do?
- Jason: Keep cool, boy, just write a letter per snail-mail, or phone her ...
- Brian: Good idea – if mum hadn't washed the paper with the address ...
- Jason: Sounds as if you have a serious problem. See what I can do for you. My uncle spent some time in Germany, I think the place was called Herford. I remember he told me about a British radio station over there. I think its name is "BFBS". Perhaps they have a programme for young people and you can try to contact her with the help of them.
- Brian: Are you sure??? Can you get me the address of this radio station?
- Jason: Well, I'll ask my uncle.

Narrator: Three days later Brian held the note with the address of BFBS-radio in Herford in his hands. No mails from Pauline so far. What could he do? He was really upset. Suddenly he had an idea: What about going to Herford?

E) Sprachmittlung

Fred aus Dallas ist als Austauschschüler in eurer Familie.

Er hat im letzten Jahr Urlaub in Florida gemacht und den Nationalpark Everglades besucht. Dabei hat er ein Reisetagebuch geführt.

Deine jüngeren Geschwister können noch kein Englisch und möchten gern wissen, was dabei besonders interessant war. Deshalb bitten sie Dich, ihnen auf deutsch zu sagen, was Fred notiert hat.

Saturday,

We went to Florida early in the morning and stayed at Flamingo Lodge,
an excellent hotel
in the Everglades
National Park.

There were hundreds of flamingos
everywhere.

But the hotel was
very expensive.
Our family paid
500 Dollars for 5 days.

Sunday,

Super airboat tour.

Finest Airboat Fleet
in The Everglades!

- covered passenger compartment
- you won't get sunburned !

MondayThe most exciting trip was the tour to the alligator farm.

We saw hundreds of alligators and lots of snakes.

We watched the alligators and my father took a photo
of me with an alligator baby.
That was great.
